

SSDI/SSI Appeals

Initially, the Social Security Administration (SSA) denies a majority of the applications it receives for Social Security Disability Insurance (SSDI) and Supplemental Security Income (SSI) benefits. While it is easy to get frustrated with the SSA, it is important that you do not give up. Perseverance can pay off, and so can having an experienced Social Security law attorney fighting for you through the appeals process. Our Social Security lawyers have over two decades of experience representing claimants in SSDI and SSI appeals at SSA administrative and federal court levels. What We Can Do for You

Anyone who has been denied SSDI or SSI benefits or who have received notice that the SSA wants to reduce or terminate these benefits, should immediately call Tully Rinckey PLLC in Albany, N.Y. Our experienced Social Security law attorneys will help you fight for the SSDI or SSI benefits to which you are entitled. Call us to schedule your free initial consultation with an experienced Social Security law attorney, who will review your case, inform you of your rights, and help you determine the best strategy for your appeal.

No matter what stage of the application or appeals process we begin representing you, you will not be billed until after you win your claim. The federal government regulates our fees, and you will get paid before we do. So don't let financial concerns prevent you from calling Tully Rinckey PLLC to get an experienced Social Security law attorney on your side. Whether you need to obtain or retain SSDI or SSI benefits, Tully Rinckey PLLC in Albany, N.Y. can represent you at any level of the appeals process, which includes the following: Hearing:

An SSA administrative law judge examines the merits of your case.

Appeals Council:

The SSA's Appeals Council reviews an administrative law judge's unfavorable decision.

Federal Court:

A federal court reviews the Appeals Council's unfavorable decision.

If you are a disabled worker, or a worker's disabled surviving spouse or disabled adult child, and the SSA is denying you SSDI benefits or is trying to take them away, Tully Rinckey PLLC in Albany, N.Y. can represent you in your appeal.
