Wills

A will is a legal document in which a person states what will happen to his or her property and assets after his or her death. Wills can also designate guardians for the care of minor children. You don't have to be wealthy to have the need for a will. Regardless of how much or how little you have, a will ensures that your property and assets will go to the parties you designate, otherwise the legislature has made the decisions for you. This could result in your property being given to unintended heirs and would exclude friends, unmarried partners, charities and distant relatives. With the help of an attorney, every competent person over the age of eighteen should have, at the very least, a basic will.Our lawyers can help you draft a valid and complete will to make sure the futures of your loved ones will be secure. We have years of experience planning and drafting wills all over New York State, including Albany, Troy, Schenectady, Latham, Colonie, Cohoes, Saratoga, the rest of the Capital Region and beyond. We will take a personal approach in handling your matter, providing reasonably priced and compassionate service to individuals making what are sometimes confusing and difficult decisions.Because the laws that govern wills are complex, it is in your best interest to have an experienced lawyer prepare your Will. Having your legal documents prepared by a knowledgeable estate attorney will provide the greatest chance of ensuring your wishes will be carried out as efficiently and inexpensively as possible.
