

White Collar Crimes

Not all crimes are violent in nature. Generally, a non-violent offense that involves fraud, deceit, or breach of trust is considered a “white collar crime.” Whether it involves illegal transactions, money, or property, these crimes and the laws that prohibit them are incredibly complex and it is important that you have an experienced defense team representing you. Although no one is physically injured and property is not damaged during these crimes, the consequences are still very serious. You can be hit with heavy fines, reparations, lose your professional license, be put on probation, or sentenced to jail or prison. Common white collar crimes include:

Fraud
: Deceptive practices that result in personal gain, such as wire fraud, identity theft, tax fraud, money laundering, and mail fraud.

Embezzlement

: Theft of property or money that was entrusted to the accused embezzler.

Extortion

: Ransom, blackmail, or bribery.

Perjury

: Making a false statement.

Computer Crimes

: Cyber stalking, e-mail interception, identity theft, and hacking.

Racketeering

: The operation of an illegal for-profit business.
