

Drug Possession

Being in possession of an illegal substance is a serious crime in New York. Anyone caught handling or harboring illegal drugs, drug paraphernalia (e.g. water pipes, bongs), chemicals (e.g. dilutents, dilutants, adulterants) or apparatus (e.g. vials, scales) used for the manufacturing, distribution, sale or ingestion of controlled substances could face severe penalties. Penalties could include a prison sentence, a driver's license suspension or revocation, probation, fines, drug testing, and forced registration as a narcotics offender. You are innocent until proven guilty. We believe that. We want to listen to your story and fight for your vindication. People should be cautious about making statements to law enforcement officers because their statements can be twisted to be used against them. Before saying anything, consult with a lawyer.
