

Spousal Support

When a couple divorces, a court may require a spouse to pay spousal support. Spousal support is designed to help the lower-earning spouse maintain a certain standard of living and achieve a level of education or training that could help him or her become self-supporting.
How We Can Help

Tully Rinckey PLLC's attorneys in Syracuse, N.Y. know how sensitive support issues are. Court orders for spousal support can be permanent or temporary and terminate when the receiving party remarries. Several factors play into how much and for how long a spouse may be required to pay spousal support. Spousal support payments can also increase or decrease through a court order, depending on the circumstances. Tully Rinckey PLLC's family and matrimonial lawyers in Syracuse, N.Y. have experience representing both spouses petitioning for spousal support and those being asked to pay it. We can help with the following:

Negotiating voluntary spousal support agreements

Petitioning for temporary spousal support while the divorce case is pending

Preparing and filing petitions for spousal support

Compiling financial information necessary to determine spousal support amounts

Multiple factors will be taken into consideration when determining the amount and duration of spousal support. It is crucial that your attorney is able to compellingly present to the court evidence relating to any of these factors. Tully Rinckey PLLC's family and matrimonial attorneys in Syracuse, N.Y. are experienced in helping spouses going through a divorce determine appropriate amounts of spousal support.
