

Bankruptcy Litigation

The road to the financial fresh start promised by the bankruptcy system is not always smooth. Bankruptcy litigation may arise as creditors and debtors act to protect what they perceive to be their interests. Some of these actions, such as preferential payments or post-filing collection attempts, are not sanctioned by the Bankruptcy Code. To ensure that they obtain the relief or payment to which they are entitled, debtors and creditors should be represented by an experienced bankruptcy litigator. How We Can Help
