

Supplemental Security Income (SSI)

Millions of low-income Americans who are elderly, blind, or disabled receive benefits from the Social Security Administration's (SSA) Supplement Security Income (SSI) program. With the income that low-income aged, blind, and disabled individuals receive through this federally administered program, they can secure food, clothing, and shelter. More than half of the 8.1 million Americans who receive SSI benefits suffer from a mental disorder. What We Can Do for You

Tully Rinckey PLLC's Social Security law attorneys have over two decades of experience helping the aged, blind, and disabled obtain or retain SSI benefits. We can help claimants in the Syracuse, N.Y. area apply for SSI benefits or appeal

SSA decisions terminating, reducing, or denying those benefits.
