

SSDI/SSI Appeals

It is easy to get frustrated with the Social Security system. The Social Security Administration (SSA) initially denies most applications for Social Security Disability Insurance (SSDI) and Supplemental Security Income (SSI). But don't get frustrated by these SSA decisions – get one of Tully Rinckey PLLC's experienced Social Security law attorneys on your side. What We Can Do for You

For over two decades, our Social Security lawyers have been helping people appeal SSA decisions at the administrative and federal court levels to help them obtain or retain the SSDI or SSI benefits to which they are entitled. We are passionate about helping disabled workers and other disabled individuals fight the SSA to get them the benefits they deserve. We can represent you if the SSA has denied your application for SSDI or SSI benefits, or if it is trying to reduce or revoke those benefits. Don't take "No" for an answer. Call Tully Rinckey PLLC in Syracuse, N.Y. to schedule an initial consultation with an experienced Social Security law attorney who will review your case, inform you of your rights, and tell you the best strategy for prevailing in your appeal. You will not have to worry about attorney's fees until you prevail in your legal matter.

Tully Rinckey PLLC's Social Security lawyers can represent you at any level of the appeals process to ensure you get the SSD or SSI benefits you deserve. The appellate process includes the following: Hearing:

The merits of your case are reviewed by an administrative law judge.

Appeals Council:

The administrative law judge's unfavorable decision is reviewed by members of the Appeals Council.

Federal Court:

After filing a civil lawsuit, a federal court reviews the Appeals Council's unfavorable decision.
