

Inbound for TSA Security Screeners: USERRA Rights

By Mathew B. Tully

Transportation Security Administration screeners will finally be protected from supervisors who discriminate against them because of their military service. Under legislation signed into law by President Barack Obama in August of 2012, the protections already afforded to most federal employees by the Uniformed Services Employment and Reemployment Rights Act will now be extended to TSA security screeners and supervisory security screeners.

I have been an advocate of extending USERRA rights for many years. In 2007, I testified before the U.S. Senate Committee on Veterans' Affairs and told lawmakers that such changes "are pivotal in advancing our national defense interests and achieving parity and equity in the workplace."

As of May 2012, 10,000 of TSA's 50,000 employees were veterans, according to Rep. Sheila Jackson Lee, chairwoman of the Homeland Security Subcommittee on Transportation Security and Infrastructure Protection. That means TSA employs more veterans than agencies such as the Departments of Commerce, Education, Energy, Labor, Health and Human Services, and Justice, according to an Office of Personnel Management report on veterans employment.

TSA security's screeners' exclusion from USERRA originated with the Aviation and Transportation Security Act, which President George W. Bush signed in the wake of the Sept. 11, 2001 attacks. This law contained a loophole that granted the undersecretary of transportation for security authority to employ, appoint, discipline, and terminate, screeners, in addition to fixing the compensation, terms, and conditions of their employment "[n]otwithstanding any other provision of law."

In 2004, the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit ruled in Vincent Conyers v. Merit Systems Protection Board that this "notwithstanding" clause meant the undersecretary was not bound to statutes such as USERRA with respect to employment actions involving TSA screeners. The legislation enacted by President Obama this year — H.R. 3670 — closed this loophole by striking the word "notwithstanding" from statute and specifying that the undersecretary must adhere to the provisions of USERRA.

Even before the enactment of this law, TSA adopted policies based on many of USERRA's provisions. However, at my federal employment law practice I frequently see cases involving supervisors who disregard agency policies. Although TSA voluntarily permitted the Office of Special Counsel and Department of Labor to investigate USERRA violation claims, according to a Government Accountability Office report

, more was needed to help unprotected screeners. These employees needed the MSPB to hold their agencies' feet to the fire when policies are ignored.

The law takes effect 270 days after enactment, or on May 13, 2013. Now that TSA screeners are due to receive their long-fought protections under USERRA, it is crucial that they know what their rights are and how to assert them. Chief among these rights are:

The right to reemployment, upon application, after returning from active uniformed service;

The right to the seniority, pay, status, and benefits of seniority the service member would have received had he or she not left their civilian job for active uniformed service;

Protections against discrimination on the basis of military service in hiring, firing, promotion, demotion, and reemployment actions.

Protections against retaliation for asserting their USERRA rights.

These USERRA rights are available to service members — including those in the National Guard and Reserves — so long as they served honorably and their cumulative periods of

"LITERALLY THE BEST MONEY I EVER SPENT!!!! The USAF charged my son with Article 92, Violate General Order and Article 128, Simple Assault. I spoke to many attorneys who said to me, "Your son will be convicted of the Simple Assault because putting lotion on someone's face is considered an assault as it is an unwanted touch." They all wanted me to work on a plea deal with the government that ended with my son being discharged, spending time in the brig and having a federal conviction for the rest of his life. Knowing that this just didn't warrant a federal conviction, bad conduct discharge and time in the brig, I was on a search to find an attorney who would look at this case for what it was: a couple of 19-21 year-old immature young men horse playing. I was looking for someone who would say something different; someone who would be able to look at the case from more than one view. When I spoke to Mr. Rinckey, I thought I was going to get the same ole speech, but to my surprise, I IMMEDIATELY felt at ease and I knew right then that he was going to be my attorney (not sure if he knew it at this time). He took on this case with vigor and ZERO FEAR of the government! He wanted them to know that this was NOT going to go away with any plea deal! And he went to work! Then, LITERALLY 2 DAYS BEFORE trail the government added an additional charge, which was Article 134, Unlawful Entry. Mr. Rinckey stayed focused, developed a plan, and off to trail we went. He was so prepared, calm and at ease. I remember him saying to me, "I am ready to try this case." And yesterday – 14 APR 2016 – my son was found NOT GUILTY on ALL CHARGES AND SPECIFICATIONS!!! Yesss!!! You know, it's always hard to find money for an attorney, but I learned one thing with this case. Although I thought we couldn't afford an attorney, the truth of the matter was that we couldn't afford NOT TO HAVE an attorney. I only wish I had found Mr. Rinckey sooner, but that's okay. I have found my ATTORNEY for life," Y.W. on Founding Partner on Greg Rinckey, Esq.

“He attacked my matter with the determination, attentiveness and professionalism that I would expect”

"Attorney Anthony Kuhn was able to negotiate the dismissal of involuntary administrative separation proceedings against me and arrange for me to voluntarily retire. After a second GOMOR was permanently filed in my personnel file, the Army informed me that I was facing involuntary separation. After missing my window to rebut the proceedings, I called Anthony Kuhn for assistance and he assured me that he would do everything in his power to negotiate a dismissal and voluntary retirement. He attacked my matter with the determination, attentiveness and professionalism that I would expect from a seasoned attorney and fellow combative Veteran. He made it clear from the start that he was personally vested in my matter. As a Sergeant Major and former client, I enthusiastically and unequivocally recommend Attorney and Veteran Anthony Kuhn to any fellow service member or Veteran with a pending Military Law matter," P.W. on Attorney Anthony Kuhn

“Mr. Greiner's professional demeanor, intelligence, and attention to detail certainly made the difference”

"Anyone facing a life altering dilemma has two choices: give up or carry on. Mr. Greiner not only helped me carry on, but professionally fought for my wellbeing above and beyond what was required of him. He represented me in my Defense Office of Hearings and Appeals (DOHA) court hearing recently. Not only did Mr. Greiner take over my case on short notice, but quickly gathered and reviewed all necessary documentation and information. In addition he arranged to meet with me in person and go over all the facts. He provided me with sound professional advice on moving forward in resolving my case." "I am an industrial security professional with over 15 years of experience in handling security matters for the government. My security clearance provides me the access required, and without it I would be unable to continue in my career. As a single mother of two children that is a frightening thought." "Mr. Greiner's professional demeanor, intelligence, and attention to detail certainly made the difference in the final ruling of my case. I was particularly impressed with his ability to deflect opposing counsel's arguments or mitigate them altogether. His years of experience and expertise shined through not only in court, but also during follow up communications with additional documentation requested by the administrative judge. He was a pleasure to work with and I highly recommend him, and have, to those seeking legal navigation in security clearance matters. My security clearance was granted thanks to his efforts. In closing Mr. Greiner is not only an asset to Tully Rinckey law firm, but a leader in his field that exceeded my expectations," J.L. on Attorney Gregory F. Greiner, Esq.

You reassured me that we were a team and that you would be with me every step of the way. What looked so dim became a bright light at the end of the Statement of Reasons you walked me through.
