Why an Attorney Needs an Attorney

While an attorney who receives a letter from the Office of Bar Counsel seeking a response to an allegation of misconduct may be certain that he or she has done nothing wrong, the worst thing an attorney can do is ignore or fail to fully respond to the complaint.

Consulting with competent counsel, experienced in the field of legal ethics and attorney discipline, may lead to a prompt and satisfactory disposition of the matter. In the case of a meritorious complaint, ethics counsel can help the attorney achieve the best possible outcome. Where serious misconduct is established, ethics counsel can seek to minimize the possible discipline.
